an expert analysis of abraham lincoln s three most powerful speeches reveals his rhetorical genius and his thoughts on our national character abraham lincoln our greatest president believed that our national character was defined by three key moments the writing of the constitution our declaration of independence from england and the beginning of slavery on the north american continent his thoughts on these landmarks can be traced through three speeches the lyceum address the gettysburg address and the second inaugural the latter two are well known enshrined forever on the walls of the lincoln memorial the former is much less familiar to most written a quarter century before his presidency when he was a 28 year old illinois state legislator in his greatest speeches professor diana schaub offers a brilliant line by line analysis of these timeless works placing them in historical context and explaining the brilliance behind their rhetoric the result is a complete vision of lincoln s worldview that is sure to fascinate and inspire general readers and history buffs alike this book is a wholly original resource for considering the difficult questions of american purpose and identity questions that are no less contentious or essential today than they were over two hundred years ago

how did the g w bush administration manage to persuade americans to go to war in iraq in march 2003 how was this intervention and the global campaign named as war on terror legitimised linguistically this book shows that the best legitimisation effects in political discourse are accomplished through the use of proximization a cognitive rhetorical strategy that draws on the speaker s ability to present events as directly and increasingly affecting the addressee usually in a negative or threatening way there are three aspects of proximization spatial temporal and axiological the spatial aspect involves the construal of events in the discourse as physically endangering the addressee the temporal aspect involves presenting the events as increasingly momentous and historic and hence of central significance to both the addressee and the speaker the axiological aspect consists in a growing clash between the system of values adhered to by the speaker and the addressee and the values characterizing a third party whose actions ideologically negative are made proximate and thus threatening although the tripartite model of proximization proposed in the book is complex at the level of its linguistic realisation the working assumption is intriguingly basic addressees of political discourse are more likely to legitimise pre-emptive actions aimed at neutralizing the proximate threat if they construe the threat as personally consequential the book shows how language of the war on terror and especially the rhetoric of the Iraq war respond to this precondition this second revised edition features an extended preface and a new closing chapter
