one day in 1938 john dewey addressed a room of professional educators and urged them to take up the task of finding out just what education is reading this lecture in the late 1940s philip w jackson took dewey s charge to heart and spent the next sixty years contemplating his words the stimulating result of a lifetime of thinking about educating what is education is a profound philosophical exploration of how we transmit knowledge in human society and how we think about accomplishing that vital task most contemporary approaches to education follow a strictly empirical track aiming to discover pragmatic solutions for teachers and school administrators jackson argues that we need to learn not just how to improve on current practices but also how to think about what education means in short we need to answer dewey by constantly rethinking education from the ground up guiding us through the many facets of dewey s comments jackson also calls on hegel kant and paul tillich to shed light on how a society does can and should transmit truth and knowledge to successive generations teasing out the implications in these thinkers works ultimately leads jackson to the conclusion that education is at root a moral enterprise at a time when schools increasingly serve as a battleground for ideological contests what is education is a stirring call to refocus our minds on what is for jackson the fundamental goal of education making students as well as teachers and therefore everyone better people excerpt from what is education this volume owes its inception to my efforts to teach college students and teachers how to study as i have attempted year after year to discuss with my classes the ways and means of performing the student s work the conviction has grown upon me that one of the greatest needs both of teachers and of students at present is an elementary knowledge of the philosophy of education two conclusions have shaped themselves from this conviction which stand out above all the rest the first is that education is one and the same process in all grades of schools and that the activities which we learn to perform with the help and guidance of teachers are the very activities which we shall have to continue to perform until we die the second is that the confusion as to the nature of their undertaking which hangs like a thick cloud about the efforts of teachers and students cannot be dissipated save by an attempt to answer the question what is knowledge the theory of knowledge has long been the battle ground of contending philosophical armies it was the vital question of the great apostles of education socrates and plato before it became the private property of highly technical philosophical schools it must once more i believe become one of the chief concerns of educators about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works education is in a constant state of renewal internationally where it responds to a number of pressing social political and cultural issues processes of globalization a number of conflicts and acts of terror economic and environmental crises have led to large waves of migration and asylum seekers arriving in countries with the hope of finding safer and more stable places to settle this in turn has led to cultural and religious pluralism being a key characteristic of many societies with corresponding issues of belonging and identity as well for many people there has been a shifting influence of and allegiance away from traditional religious frameworks with the emergence of new religious movements both peaceful and violent and a rise in popularity of spirituality and non religious worldviews which provide alternate frameworks for living healthy and ethical lives in order to prepare today s student for tomorrow s world one which is confronted by a range of risks and crises and which is being shaped by rapidly changing technologies educators and researchers are investigating new ways of equipping students to deal with these challenges and opportunities including the nurturing of spiritual wellbeing this book brings together the voices of many experienced educators to discuss ways to re enchant education and re enliven learning programs in response to these 21st century issues in an increasingly global and interconnected world it examines a range of international contexts including secular and religious educational settings and provides an avenue for visionary voices that identify problems and offer solutions to help shape a more promising education system that will prepare children more constructively and beneficially to flourish in their future worlds neoliberalism has been widely criticised because of its role in prioritising free markets as the optimum way of solving problems and organising society in the field of education this leads to an emphasis on the knowledge economy that can reduce both persons and education to economic actors and be detrimental to wider social and ethical goals drawing on a range of international contexts across informal adult school and university settings this book provides innovative examples that show how neoliberalism in education can be challenged and changed at the local national and transnational levels in order to foster a more democratic culture many accounts of critical pedagogy particularly accounts of trying to enact it within higher education he express a deep cynicism about whether it is possible to counter the ever creeping hegemony of neo liberalism neo conservatism and new managerialism within universities hopeful pedagogies in higher education acknowledges some of these criticisms but attempts to rescue critical pedagogy locating some of its associated pessimism as misreading of freire and offering hopeful avenues for new theory and practice these misreadings are also located in the present in the assumption that unless change comes within the lifetime of the project it has somehow failed instead this book argues that a positive utopianism is possible present actions need to be celebrated and cultivated as symbols of hope possibility and generativity for the future which the concept of hope implies the contributors make the case for celebrating the pedagogies of he that operate in liminal spaces situated in the spaces between the present and the future between the world as it is and the world as it could be and also in the cracks that are beginning to show in the dominant discourses michael apple offers a powerful analysis of current debates and a compelling indictment of rightist proposals for change apple presents the causes and effects of further integrating schools into the corporate agenda as well as current calls for a national curriculum and national testing privatization and voucher plans and fundamentalist religious pressures to censor textbooks he demonstrates who will be the winners and losers culturally and economically as the conservative restoration gains in strength bringing with it an even greater restratification of knowledge and students in terms of race class and gender in time for educational poetics the author addresses a discussion in the context of today s philosophy of education and educational research conceptually educational poetics is not limited to a theoretical construction but rather focuses on the creative imaginative and poetic experience to being recreated in the teaching learning process educational poetics is rooted in the philosophical and aesthetic thought of south asia specifically in how contemplative and creative practices re introduced by rabindranath tagore educational poetics is the convergence of research in creative contemplation and poetic creation practices of conscious attention and mindfulness and practices of peace education and philosophy of non violence this book leads to a perspective in thinking about the risks that jeopardize the future of young generations while there is considerable literature on social inequality and education there is little recent work which explores notions of difference and diversity in relation to race class and gender this edited text aims to bring together researchers in the field of education located across many international contexts such as the uk australia usa new zealand and europe contributors investigate the ways in which dominant perspectives on difference intersectionality and institutional structures underpin and reinforce educational inequality in schools and higher education they emphasize the importance of international perspectives and innovative methodological approaches to examining these areas and seek to locate the dimensions of difference within recent theoretical discourses with an emphasis on race class and gender as key categories of analysis why do disadvantaged students continue to get a poor deal as they progress through england s education system challenging orthodox thinking about school exclusion this book powerfully advocates for a fairer education system for disadvantaged students it argues that the current conceptualisation of exclusion physically removing the student from the school is insufficient this approach fails to recognise the layers of exclusion that these students encounter students can be excluded within their schools inner exclusion not just from school outer exclusion drawing on student experiences of exclusion and the perspectives of senior leaders including the author who is a head of school this book demonstrates how we can create a fairer education system for disadvantaged students
