of rushdie's short story cycle East West one question quickly evolves in the recipient's mind: does the comma in the title stand for a separator keeping apart two cultural blocks namely an eastern and a western world or can it also be considered as a linking bridge? However, when reading rushdie's colourful stories it becomes clear that he even goes far beyond this bridge notion. The author doesn't only try to link or reconcile the two parts but he, as a migrant between the two worlds, ironically plays with the traditional images of orient and occident by applying a huge variety of genre styles, structures and techniques. He finally deconstructs the traditional notions of the two entities. In doing so, he undermines the reader's conventional assumptions about the east and west and makes clear that in recent times reality cannot be pressed into or described by such simple schemes any longer. When rushdie writes that literature is of all the arts the one best suited to challenging absolutes of all kinds, this is exactly what he does in East West: nothing is sacred any longer and thus most of the stories can be considered as attempts to ironically challenge and deconstruct sanctities and weak sides of eastern and western culture. By this critique, he makes clear that within the global village these two parts of the world are closely interrelated and cannot be considered as opposing entities. Thus, rushdie goes beyond the common debates about whether there is a divide of the world into east and west or not. However, as the short stories in East West fulfil all more or less this deconstructive design on the one side and represent on the o over the last two decades the experiences of colonization and decolonization, once safely relegated to the margins of what occupied students of history and literature, have shifted into the latter's center of attention in the west. As elsewhere, this attention does not restrict itself to the historical dimension of colonization and decolonization but also focuses upon their impact upon the present. For both colonizers and colonized, the nearly fifty essays here gathered examine how literature now and in the past keeps and has kept alive the experiences, both individual and collective, of colonization and decolonization. The contributors to this volume hail from the four corners of the earth: east and west, north and south. The authors discussed range from international luminaries past and present such as Aphra Behn, Racine, Blaise Cendrars, Salman Rushdie, Graham Greene, Derek Walcott, Guimarães Rosa, J. M. Coetzee, André Brink, and Assia Djebar to less known but certainly not lesser authors like Gioconda Belli, René Depestre, Amadou Koné, Elisa Chimenti, Sappho, Arthur Nortje, Es'kia Mphahlele, Mark Behr, Viktor Paskov, Evelyn Wilwert, and Leïla Houari. Issues addressed include the role of travel writing in forging images of foreign lands for domestic consumption, the reception and translation of western classics in the east, the impact of contemporary Chinese cinema upon both native and western audiences, and the use of western generic novel conventions in modern Egyptian literature.

Modern writers and scholars from the Islamic East have represented actual or fictional encounters with the West in a surprising variety of ways, far from constituting a monolithic approach to the West. As western orientalism often tended to, these writings reveal an interest in and sometimes acute perception of cross-cultural conflict and synthesis. The very difficulties experienced by writers and critics immersed in two or more cultures have led to new creative and innovative forms of response to the West. By shifting focus in East-West relations towards the East, it initiates further interdisciplinary discussions.
