the death of nelson mandela the great south african fighter for freedom in december 2013 prompted several colleagues within the world council of comparative education societies community to come together to think about the significance of his life and his work for education this book is the result of that coming together the contributing authors reflect on what his life the commitments he made and principally the values he took into the struggle for freedom in south africa mean for education the point of departure for the book is that of honouring the man it begins with the argument that the values for which he stood namely the unconditional dignity of all human beings respect for difference and principally his lifelong commitment to justice have a special significance for how we as inhabitants of an increasingly connected and interdependent world conduct our personal lives our relationships with one another and with the material and living space which surrounds us it is an ecological approach as the world moves into a twenty first century where paradoxically we know so much and yet appear to understand so little and so find ourselves struggling to create social lives in which all of us can feel respected can offer respect to others and live lives free of fear and anxiety the values for which he stood have specific relevance for how we do the important job of teaching and what we put into it mandela poses deeply provocative questions about the kinds of lives we seek for ourselves and for everybody else around us this book analyses the nexus between ideology the state and education reforms worldwide the research evinces the neo liberal ideological imperatives of current education and policy reforms and illustrates the way these shifts in the relationship between the state and education policy are affecting current trends in education reforms and schooling around the globe with this as its focus the chapters represent hand picked scholarly research on major discourses in the field of global education reforms offering a compendium of the very latest thought on the subject this book is like the others in the series a state of the art sourcebook for researchers practitioners and policymakers alike not only do the chapters offer a timely analysis of current issues shaping education policy research the work also contains ideas about future directions that education and policy reforms could take by doing so it provides a comprehensive view of the diverse and intersecting discourses on globalisation and policy driven reforms in education the book draws on recent studies in the areas of globalisation education reforms and the role of the state respective chapters critically assess the dominant discourses and debates on education and policy reforms using diverse comparative education paradigms ranging from critical theory to historical comparative research they focus on globalisation ideology and democracy and examine both the reasons for and outcomes of education reforms and policy change nelson mandela 1918 2013 rest in peace madiba nelson rolihlahla mandela was a south african anti apartheid revolutionary politician and philanthropist who served as president of south africa from 1994 to 1999 for most south africans nelson mandela is the father of their nation and many even called him tata a xhosa word for father it was sometimes forgotten that he was also a real father grandfather great grandfather and husband he earned a place in history alongside the likes of another father of a nation mahatma gandhi but there was a fundamental difference between these beloved men persuasive arguments paint gandhi as a dismal family man by all accounts mandela was a strong and loving family man even so mandela and his family paid dearly in the currency of sacrifice and pain for his commitment to his country's freedom mandela himself offered a glimpse into his personal war to be the father of a nation is a great honour but to be the father of a family is a greater joy but it was a joy i had far too little of he said in april 1992
