seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject english language and literature studies linguistics grade 1 5 language english abstract john r searle was born in 1932 in denver colorado in his article what is a speech act searle develops a theory in the philosophy of a language according to which speaking in a language is a matter of performing illocutionary acts with certain intentions according to constitutive rules grewendorf meggie 2002 4 the following paper will deal with the ideas on speech acts developed in searle s article first a fundamental understanding of the assumptions searle s theory is based on will be provided there will be a brief introduction to the theories of j l austin and h p grice whom searle s article was mostly influenced by grice s meaning and austin s how to do things with words will constitute the reading mostly consulted after providing a basis for searle s theory his article what is a speech act will be looked at in detail the examinations will include searle s distinction between regulative rules and constitutive rules and his introduction of the notions proposition indicating element and function indicating device as derived from illocutionary act and propositional content of an illocutionary act the focus will then be on searle s conditions for the illocutionary act of promising and the rules for the use of the function indicating device for promising which he derives from these conditions there will finally be a brief overview on revisions and amendments searle developed on his theory after 1965 these include a more detailed classification of speech acts and a distinction between speaker meaning and sentence meaning whereas the relationship between truth and propositional content has already been intensively investigated there are only very few studies devoted to the task of illuminating the relationship between truth and illocutionary acts this book fills that gap this innovative collection addresses such themes as the relation between the concept of truth and the success conditions of assertions and kindred speech acts the linguistic devices of expressing the truth of a proposition the relation between predication and truth in meaning and speech acts daniel vanderveken further develops the logic of speech acts and the logic of propositions to construct a general semantic theory of natural languages did earlier speakers of english use the same speech acts that we use today did they use them in the same way how did they signal speech act values and how did they negotiate them in case of uncertainty these are some of the questions that are addressed in this volume in innovative case studies that cover a wide range of speech acts from old english to present day english all the studies offer careful discussions of methodological and theoretical issues as well as detailed descriptions of specific speech acts the first part of the volume is devoted to directives and commissives i e speech acts such as requests commands and promises the second part is devoted to expressives and assertives and deals with speech acts such as greetings compliments and apologies the third part finally contains technical reports that deal primarily with the problem of extracting speech acts from historical corpora this small but tightly packed volume is easily the most substantial discussion of speech acts since john austin s how to do things with words and one of the most important contributions to the philosophy of language in recent decades philosophical quarterly first published in 1985 this book aims to develop an approach to speech acts that has the virtue of being straight forward explicit formal and flexible enough to accommodate many of the more general problems of interactive verbal communication the first chapter introduces situation semantics with the second addressing the assumptions implied by the problem of representing speaker intentionality the third chapter presents a streamlined theory of speech acts and the fourth tests the predictions of the theory in several hypothetical discourse situations a summary and suggestions for further research is provided in chapter five and appendices facilitate reference to key concepts with speech act theory assuming a renewed importance in the field of literary studies and philosophy foundations of speech act theory offers a timely thorough and above all compelling examination of the complexities of illocutionary acts performatives and their phenomenological basis savas tsohatzidis has collected an impressive range of international scholars on the subject clearly demonstrating the relevance of speech act theory to semantic theory the collection further interrogates the inability of pragmatic theories of illocution to properly locate such speech acts within the logic of phenomenology and intersubjectivity extending this analysis to the related discipline of philosophy tsohatzidis s contributors provide an elucidating investigation of problems lying outside the field of the philosophy of language while also offering other alternative and rigorous perspectives for linguistic and philosophical inquiry old testament narratives and speech act theory explores the creative power of words in old testament narratives while the most famous example of this phenomenon might involve divine utterances such as let there be light gen 1 1 steven t mann argues that human characters can also create worlds with their words in an attempt to influence the imaginations and therefore actions of their listeners this study focuses on the performative nature of speeches that are found in several key old testament narratives including genesis 4 1 26 18 16 33 exodus 1 8 22 32 1 14 numbers 13 14 2 samuel 7 1 17 amos 7 1 6 and jonah 2 1 10 4 2 3 within these narratives characters use their words to create competing worlds that clash as they attempt to advance their own agendas the storyteller s portrayal of these narrative worlds invites the audience to incorporate viewpoints of certain characters into their own world speech acts mind and social reality these are the main topics in the work of john r searle one of the leading philosophical figures of the present times how language is based on intentionality how intentionality in turn is to be explicated by means of distinctions discovered in speech act theory and how language and intentionality are both related to social facts and institutions these are questions to be tackled in this volume the contributions result from discussions on and with john r searle containing searle s own latest views including his seminal ideas on rationality in action the collection provides a good basis for advanced seminar debates in philosophy of language philosophy of mind and social philosophy and will also stimulate some further research on all of the three main topics this work consists of an examination and revision of some of the main theses of speech act theory in relation to the problem of ideology and action guiding language starting from the idea that linguistic philosophy must take into account how the social structure of the linguistic community may influence and direct the way its language is used a critical method of analysis is proposed developing speech act theory in a way suitable for this purpose the main guideline of this proposal is the consideration that a theory of action rather than a theory of meaning should be taken as central in the analysis of language the notion of illocutionary force the problem of intentions and conventions in the constitution of speech acts the definition of context and the classification of speech acts are then discussed based on the conclusions of this discussion a pragmatic method for the analysis of language is formulated this book introduces the main concepts of pragmatics as they relate to the young english language learner classroom and research with young second language learners ylls it considers the speech acts which are particularly relevant to ylls and presents research findings on learners development of speech act perception and production it provides pre and in service second language l2 teachers teacher educators and researchers with an understanding of young learners pragmatic development and with ideas for research based approaches and specific classroom activities to help foster speech act development in the yll classroom moving beyond the research methods traditionally employed in l2 pragmatics research it also demonstrates how participant centred data elicitation methods can be
