universities teach courses in ethics but do they teach students how to be ethical in practice lisa kretz s ethics emotion education and empowerment explores the ways that philosophical ethics are currently taught and argues that dominant approaches fail to adequately support ethical action in part because emotions are all too often ignored or repressed in university classrooms in isolation abstract theoretical content fails to motivate the ability to reason through an ethical dilemma does not by itself of necessity impact ethical action empowered action requires intentional emotional engagement kretz argues that part of the reason affective pedagogy fails to get sufficient uptake is due to the operations of oppression there is a long history of the reason emotion dualism undermining recognition of the necessary and valuable epistemic roles emotions play in moral life and serving as a political tactic to undermine the experience of oppressed groups this impoverishes ethical pedagogy because it is to the detriment of their ability to teach ethics in a comprehensive way and strips the potential of supporting students to enact their own reflectively held ethical beliefs and values using the example of the environmental crisis kretz makes a case for supporting students as engaged activists aware of their capacity to ethically change the world the politics of empowerment of banyarwanda refugees in uganda 1959 2001 introduces empowerment discourse to the nexus between politics security and forced migration and refugees conceptualized as a group process where people who lack their share of valued resources strive to gain greater access to and control over those resources empowerment of banyarwanda refugees was possible through a protracted struggle the book explores how the banyarwanda refugees achieved reasonable levels of integration in ugandan society because of similar demographics social economic and cultural characteristics with the ugandan population in the areas they settled had the ugandan state not broken down in the late 1970s and 1980s these refugees would have perhaps acquired naturalization a veritable form of empowerment in contrast although most hutu and tutsi refugees achieved meaningful levels of integration as some were treated badly and abused with derogatory language their leaders and some of the elites never gave up the dream of returning home the book concludes that violent conflicts emerge because of a violation of human rights and denial of access to scarce resources and rwanda and africa as a whole must build institutions that allow popular participation in decision making transfer of political power from one group or generation to the other and generally to address the question of democracy and good governance
