the study is concerned with the self understanding of protestant secondary school principals about their school leadership in the context of cameroon where education is rooted in missionary and colonial times the debate at international level on whether or not none state schools are widening inequality gaps and whether school leadership is contributing to enlightenment or to fundamentalism matter in researching about the protestant school profile and leadership the study therefore seeks to answer the research question what are the perceptions of secondary school principals of protestant schools about their school leadership the research was conceptualized as exploratory and hypothesis generating within the qualitative approach it used semi structured interviews to collect data from 26 theoretically sampled secondary school principals the data was analyzed by qualitative content analysis using the grounded theory in an iterative deductive inductive way through the generalization process of abduction and by a deep analysis of the empirical data the criteria which constitute the categories of quality first emerged thereafter six ideal types of leading understanding were generated and consists of 1 call for superiority leadership 2 state conformational leadership 3 ecclesiastical leadership 4 community participatory leadership 5 vocation to serve leadership and 6 diaconal leadership further analysis revealed a multi dimensional self understanding by principals on the protestant ethos of schools and their leadership function thus not all the six ideal leadership types are contributing to quality education on the one hand there are fundamentalist leaders focusing on normative aspects of discipline while on the other hand there are leaders promoting democratic values or working in a diaconal way promoting social justice furthermore principals show little awareness of belonging to the church as a global institution in today's competitive world spoken English is considered as a passport for success in life. The craze for learning spoken English has led to the growth of coaching institutes all over the country. Much as they may profess and advertise, it is not really possible to learn any language in 30 days. A person who genuinely wants to learn the language needs to spend two to three hours every day for at least five or six months before he or she would feel confident to communicate in English. The prime objective of this book is to encourage students to learn English as a tool of communication and to enable them to understand the language thoroughly. The book basically takes off from the learner's point of view and guides them through cooperative learning methods in order to help master the effective communication skills in English. The book has been divided into four convenient units of grammar, pronunciation, conversation, and vocabulary. Each chapter covers one main area of learning English, explained with examples carefully selected and graded. Exercises have also been included throughout the book to give readers ample practice and a complete understanding of the subject. In short, the book follows the modern functional approach to the study of English, so readers it is definitely a one-stop solution for speaking English.
