the disciplines of international law and international relations are inextricably linked both are concerned with the activities of states and with predicting how states behave and on what basis for the international lawyer however the key concern is the role of the law on the other hand political scientists have traditionally regarded international law with skepticism if not contempt in recent years new approaches in both disciplines have seen moves towards greater interdisciplinary collaboration indeed at the start of the twenty first century theorists from both disciplines are talking actively about the development of a dual agenda of international law and international relations this means that students of international relations need increasingly to be familiar with the terminology and methodology of international law this essential introductory text examines the key concepts in international law with a view to illuminating them in the context of international relations the first part of the book provides coverage of theoretical issues addressing questions such as how does international law work how is international law made and to whom does international law apply the second part examines international law in context focusing on the role of treaties and customary international law the role of individuals in international law and the legal control of the use of force it also uses case study material including an examination of the pinochet litigation universalising international law is one of the most urgent tasks awaiting those who wish to advance the discipline though all the world acknowledges its universal nature it has long been confined in a largely monocultural mould indeed a tendency is sometimes discernible for international law to be compartmentalised and to function within a close cabinet of technical rules little known to those outside the ranks of specialists this volume looks initially at some general aspects of universalisation it thereafter adopts a universalist approach to some of the sources of international law and it deals with peace the bedrock of international law which likewise requires a universalist approach it is hoped that these studies will highlight the imperative need that now exists for extending the conceptual framework of international law thereby buttressing its moral authority and widening its appeal at a time when universal acceptance of international law is one of the most pressing demands of the international system to seeking the answer to the three basic questions of contemporary private international law i also deemed it essential to outline to the reader the historical development of the different concepts of this particular branch of law for without the knowledge of this history it is impossible to understand the contemporary problems the fact that private international law oscillates between public international law and substantive municipal law as it is applied in individual countries creates considerable problems in both theory and practice i have tried to deal with these problems in the third part of my study concerning universalism and nationalism in the doctrine of private international law as well as in its fourth part which is devoted to the object and nature of this law and its place in the overall system of law the character of private international law ensuing from the plurality of municipal laws which also characterize the origin and existence of comparative jurisprudence inspired me to produce the fifth part of this study which primarily tries to explain the theoretical problems of comparative jurisprudence but does so defining its objectives and possibilities in order to underline at the same time its role in private international law and in the law of international trade
