in the 1880s from the kansas cowtowns to the flint hills moreover he punctures numerous myths about the flint hills including those that cattle dominated because the land is too rocky to farm or that indians refused to farm because of traditional beliefs like many other small rural communities hickey argues thurman during its seventy year history was actually several different settlements a product of changing social conditions each one resulted from shifting memberships and boundaries that reflected the efforts of local entrepreneurs to use country schools churches and other forms of social capital to gain advantages over their competitors in the end thurman succumbed to the impact of agribusiness which had the effect of transforming social capital from an asset into a liability ultimately hickey shows the settlement s fate echoed the decline of rural community throughout america
