this book explores the use and development of man's symbolizing capacities those qualities that make him distinctly human. Dr. Whitmont describes the symbolic approach to a dream which takes into account a symptom's meaning in reference to an unfolding wholeness of personality. He then presents the view that the instinctual urge for meaning is served by the symbolizing capacities and that this urge has been repressed in our time in the field of psychology. This symbolic approach is most fully exemplified by the theories of C. G. Jung. The author's contribution includes many differentiations and speculations especially concerning the problems of relatedness.

The nineteenth century novel identities provides an ideal starting point for understanding gender in the novels of this period. It explores the place of fiction in constructing gender identity within society at large, considering Madame Bovary, Portrait of a Lady, and The Woman in White. The book continues with a consideration of the novel at the fin de si cle, examining Dracula, The Awakening, and Heart of Darkness. These fascinating essays illuminate the ways in which the conventions of realism were disrupted as much by anxieties surrounding colonialism, decadence, degeneration, and the new woman as by those new ideas about human psychology which heralded the advent of psychoanalysis. The concepts which are crucial to the understanding of the literature and society of the nineteenth century are brilliantly explained and discussed in this essential volume.
