in his lectures on the philosophy of religion hegel treats the religions of the world under the rubric the determinate religion this is a part of his corpus that has traditionally been neglected since scholars have struggled to understand what philosophical work it is supposed to do in hegel's interpretation of the religions of the world jon stewart argues that hegel's rich analyses of buddhism hinduism zoroastrianism judaism egyptian and greek polytheism and the roman religion are not simply irrelevant historical material as is often thought instead they play a central role in hegel's argument for what he regards as the truth of christianity hegel believes that the different conceptions of the gods in the world religions are reflections of individual peoples at specific periods in history these conceptions might at first glance appear random and chaotic but there is hegel claims a discernible logic in them simultaneously a theory of mythology history and philosophical anthropology hegel's account of the world religions goes far beyond the field of philosophy of religion the controversial issues surrounding his treatment of the non european religions are still very much with us today and make his account of religion an issue of continued topicality in the academic landscape of the twenty first century the book on value education based on all the religions of the world is an anthology during dr promilla kapur's travels she was approached by many eminent scholars to compile a book based on the teachings of all the religions of the world it was a herculean task but the efforts were worth the trouble in the month of january 2001 she started approaching the eminent scholars and religious heads to write chapters of the book the most eminent scholars in hinduism jainism aryaa samaj islam christianity zoroastrianism sikhism bhai's faith and so on were contacted almost hundred reminders to each were sent at one stage it gave the feelings that it was an impossible task but the tenacity of dr promilla kapur kept her on the track by january of 2004 the chapters started arriving all the religious leaders and eminent scholars gave the word of wisdom on all the religions of the world it was heartening to read that not a single chapter writer differed from the positive image of each religion the preaching was almost identical love affection caring and sharing forgiveness tolerance and compassion for the entire human beings were the common theme revealed in all the papers the book is the need of the hour and will earn its proper place in the human society all over the world ancient religions are usually treated as collective and political phenomena and apart from a few towering figures the individual religious agent has fallen out of view addressing this gap the essays in this volume focus on the individual and individuality in ancient mediterranean religion even in antiquity individual religious action was not determined by traditional norms handed down through families and the larger social context but rather options were open and choices were made on the part of the individual this development is reflected in changes in individuation the parallel process of a gradual full integration into society and the development of self reflection and of a notion of individual identity these processes are analysed within the hellenistic and imperial periods down to christian dominated late antiquity in both pagan polytheistic as well as jewish monotheistic settings the volume focuses on individuation in everyday religious practices in phoenicia various greek cities and rome and as identified in institutional developments and philosophical reflections on the self as exemplified by the stoic seneca
