the growing ideological gulf between democrats and republicans is one of the biggest issues in american politics today our legislatures composed of members from two sharply disagreeing parties are struggling to function as the founders intended them to if we want to reduce the ideological gulf in our legislatures we must first understand what has caused it to widen so much over the past forty years andrew b hall argues that we have missed one of the most important reasons for this ideological gulf the increasing reluctance of moderate citizens to run for office while political scientists journalists and pundits have largely focused on voters worried that they may be too partisan too uninformed to vote for moderate candidates or simply too extreme in their own political views hall argues that our political system discourages moderate candidates from seeking office in the first place running for office has rarely been harder than it is in america today and the costs dissuade moderates more than extremists candidates have to wage ceaseless campaigns dialing for dollars for most of their waking hours while enduring relentless news and social media coverage when moderate candidates are unwilling to run voters do not even have the opportunity to send them to office to understand what is wrong with our legislatures then we need to ask ourselves the question who wants to run if we want more moderate legislators we need to make them a better job offer
