this book offers an in-depth exploration of contemporary issues and methodologies in the fields of dialectology and sociolinguistics. Readers will find a diverse collection of studies that examine how language varies and changes across different regions, communities, and social contexts. The book covers a wide range of languages including German, English, Yiddish, Russian, and Japanese, providing a global perspective on linguistic diversity. Key themes include the use of modern data sources such as social media to study language patterns and the impact of digital communication on regional dialects. The book also addresses the dynamics of language contact in expatriate communities, revealing how speakers adapt and merge linguistic features from different dialects. Several chapters focus on the evolution of dialectological research, offering critiques and new approaches to studying regional language variations. Readers will also encounter innovative methods such as cognitive geography, which uses mental representations of space to understand dialect variation, and tone distance measures, which are crucial for studying tonal languages. Additionally, the book presents case studies on how non-experts perceive and categorize dialects, providing insights into the public's understanding of linguistic diversity. It also tackles challenges in selecting dialect speakers for research, especially in urban environments where traditional criteria may no longer apply. Overall, this book is a valuable resource for linguists, researchers, and anyone interested in the complex and ever-changing landscape of human language. It highlights the importance of adapting research methods to keep pace with the evolving nature of language and offers fresh perspectives on how we study and understand dialects and language variation.

The Wadden Sea region is comprised of the embanked coastal marshes and islands in the Wadden Sea near Denmark, Germany, and the Netherlands. This area retains an exceptional common history in all its aspects: archaeologically, economically, socially, and culturally. Its settlement history of more than two thousand years is unrivalled and still mirrored in the landscape. Even though it has never constituted a political unity, it still shares a landscape and cultural heritage. For example, the approaches to water management and associated societal organization developed in the region during the last millennium have set significant world standards. This book offers an overview of current research on history, landscape, and cultural heritage of the Wadden Sea region.

The aim of this book is to raise questions about the investigation of identity, community, and change in prehistory and to challenge the current state of debate in Central European Neolithic archaeology. Although the LBK is one of the best researched Neolithic cultures in Europe, here the material is used in order to further explore the interconnection between individuals, households, settlements, and regions, explicitly addressing questions of Neolithic society and lived experience by embracing a variety of approaches and voices. This volume draws out some of the cross-cutting concerns which unite LBK studies in their different regional research contexts and paves the way for further debate on the subject.

From about 5500 cal BC to soon after 5000 cal BC, the lifeways of the first farmers of Central Europe, the LBK culture (Linearbandkeramik), are seen in distinctive practices of longhouse use settlement forms landscape choice subsistence material culture and mortuary rites within the five or more centuries of lbk existence a dynamic sequence of changes can be seen in for instance the expansion and increasing density of settlement progressive regionalisation in pottery decoration and at the end some signs of stress or even localised crisis although showing many features in common across its very broad distribution however the lbk phenomenon was not everywhere the same and there is a complicated mixture of uniformity and diversity this major study takes a strikingly large regional sample from northern hungary westwards along the danube to alsace in the upper rhine valley and addresses the question of the extent of diversity in the lifeways of developed and late lbk communities through a wide ranging study of diet lifetime mobility health and physical condition the presentation of the bodies of the deceased in mortuary ritual it uses an innovative combination of isotopic principally carbon nitrogen and strontium with some oxygen osteological and archaeological analysis to address difference and change across the lbk and to reflect on cultural change in general
