claudio monteverdi 1567 1643 is well known as the composer of the earliest operas still performed today his orfeo il ritorno d ulisse in patria and l incoronazione di poppea are internationally popular nearly four centuries after their creation these seminal works represent only a part of monteverdi s music for the stage however he also wrote numerous works that while not operas are no less theatrical in their fusion of music drama and dance this is a survey of monteverdi s entire output of music for the theatre his surviving operas other dramatic musical compositions and lost works in seventeenth century antilles the violence of dispossession and enslavement was mapped onto men s and women s bodies bolstered by resignified tropes of gender repurposed concepts of disability and emerging racial discourses as colonials and ecclesiastics developed local practices and institutions particularly family formation and military force they consolidated old notions into new categories that affected all social groups in engendering islands ashley m williard argues that early caribbean reconstructions of masculinity and femininity sustained occupation slavery and nascent ideas of race in the face of historical silences williard s close readings of archival and narrative texts reveals the words images and perspectives that reflected and produced new ideas of human difference juridical religious and medical discourses expose the interdependence of multiple conditions male and female enslaved and free black and white indigenous and displaced normative and disabled in the islands claimed for the french crown in recent years scholars have interrogated key aspects of atlantic slavery but none have systematically approached the archive of gender particularly as it intersects with race and disability in the seventeenth century french caribbean the constructions of masculinity and femininity embedded in this early colonial context help elucidate attendant notions of otherness and the systems of oppression they sustained williard shows the ways gender contributed to and complicated emerging notions of racial difference that justified slavery and colonial domination thus setting the stage for centuries of french imperialism

the pregnant birthing and nurturing body is a recurring topos in early modern french literature such bodies often metaphors for issues and anxieties obtaining to the gendered control of social and political institutions acquired much of their descriptive power from contemporaneous medical and scientific discourse in this study kirk read brings together literary and medical texts that represent a range of views from lyric poets satirists and polemicists to midwives and surgeons all of whom explore the popular sixteenth and early seventeenth century narratives of birth in france although the rhetoric of birthing was widely used strategies and negotiations depended upon sex and gender this study considers the male female and hermaphroditic experience offering both an analysis of women s experiences to be sure but also opening onto the perspectives of non female birthers and their place in the social and political climate of early modern france the writers explored include rabelais madeleine and catherine des roches louise boursier pierre de ronsard pierre boaistuau and jacques duval read also explores the implications of the metaphorical use of reproduction such as the presentation of literary work as offspring and the poet mentor relationship as that of a suckling child foregrounded in the study are the questions of what it means for women to embrace biological and literary reproduction and how male appropriation of the birthing body influences the mission of creating new literary traditions furthermore by exploring the cases of indeterminate birthing entities and the social anxiety that informs them read complicates the binarisms at work in the vexed terrain of sexuality sex and gender in this period ultimately read considers how the narrative of birth produces historical conceptions of identity authority and gender in the wake of new interest in alchemy as more significant than a bizarre aberration in rational western european culture this collection examines both alchemical and medical discourses in the larger context of early modern europe how do early scientific discourses infiltrate other cultural domains such as literature philosophy court life and the conduct of households how do these new contexts deflect scientific pursuits into new directions and allow a larger participation in the elaboration of scientific methods and perspectives might there have been a scientific subculture particularly surrounding alchemy which allowed women to participate in scientific pursuits long before they were admitted in an investigative capacity into official academic settings this volume poses those questions as a starting point for a broader discussion of scientific subcultures and their relationship to the restructuring and questioning of gender roles so what is it about this is the story of the end of the world as told by a teenager so as near as i could tell the end of the world began roughly about the time that billy carver's butt rang about halfway through the war of 1812 sixteen year old briar gamble is having a bad day it started with the cell phones singing for santa claus then came the tanks and the storm troopers the black masks in their black fish bowl sunglasses and then along came captain albino that s how it all started back in october 2012 when i released the first episode of flash virus what you are looking at now is the first five episodes of flash virus and the first full length novel in the series so in all honesty if you have already read those first five episodes of flash virus you can probably get away with not purchasing this volume but if you haven t read those first five episodes then what are you waiting for santa claus
