lizard's foot, the moth's eye and other natural examples are inspiring improvements and new technologies in our lives. Engineers and inventors have long examined God's creation to understand and copy complex, proven mechanics of design in the science known as biomimicry. Much of this inspiration is increasingly drawn from amazing aspects of nature, including insects to plants to man, in search of wisdom and insight. We are surrounded daily by scientific advancements that have become everyday items simply because man is copying from God's incredible creation without acknowledging the creator. Champions of invention, the great minds of the past are still with us today in many ways. Individuals who explored the natural world hundreds and thousands of years ago have given us a treasure of knowledge in all the sciences. In this exciting series from educator-author John Hudson, ten short biographies of the world's most gifted thinkers will inspire the leaders of tomorrow. Study the life of the forgotten inventor Joseph Henry, whose exploration of electricity set the standard for later innovators. Find out how a personal tragedy paved the way for Samuel F. B. Morse to put aside his painting and develop the telegraph. These valuable learning guides will give students accurate accounts of lives from the halls of science and explain what those scientists believed about the world around them. Discovery of design from the frontiers of scientific discovery: researchers are now taking design elements from the natural world and creating extraordinary breakthroughs that benefit our health, our quality of life and our ability to communicate and even help us work more efficiently. An exciting look at cutting-edge scientific advances: discovery of design highlights incredible examples that include how things like batteries, human organ repair, microlenses, automotive engineering, paint and even credit card security all have links to natural designs. Innovations like solar panels in space unfurled using technology gleaned from beech tree leaves and optic research rooted in the photonic properties of opal gemstones. Current and future research from the fields of stealth technology, communications, cosmetics, nanotechnology, surveillance and more take a fantastic journey into the intersection of science and God's blueprints for life. Discovering answers to some of the most intricate challenges we face in a multi-purpose educational supplement.

North Holland series in applied mathematics and mechanics, volume 25, Three dimensional problems of the mathematical theory of elasticity and thermoelasticity, focuses on the theory of three dimensional problems including oscillation theory, boundary value problems and integral equations. The publication first tackles basic concepts and axiomatization and basic singular solutions. Discussions focus on fundamental solutions of thermoelasticity, fundamental solutions of the couple stress theory, strain energy and Hooke's law in the couple stress theory and basic equations in terms of stress components. The manuscript then examines uniqueness theorems and singular integrals and integral equations. The book ponders on the potential theory and boundary value problems of elastic equilibrium and steady elastic oscillations. Topics include basic theorems of the oscillation theory, existence of solutions of boundary value problems, integral equations of the boundary value problems and boundary properties of potential type integrals. The publication also reviews mixed dynamic problems, couple stress elasticity and boundary value problems for media bounded by several surfaces. The text is a dependable source of data for mathematicians and readers interested in three dimensional problems of the mathematical theory of elasticity and thermoelasticity.
