as a discipline archaeology has developed rapidly over the last half century the increase in so called public archaeology with its wide range of television programming community projects newspaper articles and enhanced site based interpretation has taken archaeology from a closed academic discipline of interest to a tiny minority to a topic of increasing interest to the general public this book explores how archaeologists share information with specialists from other disciplines working within archaeology other archaeologists and a range of non specialist groups it emphasises that to adequately address contemporary levels of interest in their subject archaeologists must work alongside and trust experts with an array of different skills and specializations drawing on case studies from eleven countries sharing archaeology explores a wide range of issues raised as the result of archaeologists communication both within and outside the discipline examining best practice with wider implications and uses beyond the specified case studies the chapters in this book raise questions as well as answers provoking a critical evaluation of how best to interact with varied audiences and enhance sharing of archaeology practitioner perspectives on intangible cultural heritage provides an accessible introduction to the intangible cultural heritage field summarising the major changes that have taken place over the last two decades the book explores ongoing debates and changes in thinking about best practice drawing on the author's own experience of operationalising the unesco 2003 convention for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in a variety of contexts orr also incorporates international case studies from practitioners and provides valuable insights about best practices demonstrating that the top down state driven hierarchy for the safeguarding of heritage is starting to shift to a model of shared ownership and values driven by communities and practitioners the book shows that the notion of the expert is also diversifying to include other forms of transmission of traditional knowledge orr argues that these different perspectives provide a platform to enrich understanding and knowledge and create a stronger basis for the safeguarding of heritage both intangible and tangible exploring some of the policy developments that have laid the foundations for the future involvement of community and practitioners in the global discourse the book also suggests how practitioners can expand networks and contribute to the global discourse practitioner perspectives on intangible cultural heritage will appeal to museum curators and other heritage professionals as well as students and academics engaged in the study of museums and heritage art and cultural policy and management this open access book identifies various forms of heritage destruction and analyses their causes it proposes strategies for avoiding and solving conflicts based on integrating heritage into the 2030 agenda for sustainable development it reflects on the identity building role of heritage on multidimensional conflicts and the destruction of heritage and considers conflict solving strategies and future perspectives furthermore it engages theoretically and practically with the concepts of responsibility reconciliation and sustainability relating mainly to four sustainable development goals i e sdgs 4 education 11 e g world heritage 13 climate action and 17 partnerships for the goals more than 160 countries have inscribed properties on the unesco world heritage list since the world heritage convention came into force improvements in the implementation of the convention such as the global strategy for a representative balanced and credible world heritage list have occurred but other conflicts have not been solved the book advocates for a balanced distribution of properties and more effective strategies to represent the global diversity of cultural and natural heritage furthermore it highlights the importance of heritage in identity building
