Islam and the destiny of man by Charles Le Gai Eaton is a wide ranging study of the Muslim religion from a unique point of view. The author, a former member of the British diplomatic service, was brought up as an agnostic and embraced Islam at an early age. After writing a book commissioned by T. S. Eliot on Eastern religions and their influence upon Western thinkers, as a Muslim he has retained his adherence to the perennial philosophy which he maintains underlies the teachings of all the great religions. The aim of this book is to explore what it means to be a Muslim, a member of a community which embraces a quarter of the world's population, and to describe the forces which have shaped the hearts and the minds of Islamic people. After considering the historic confrontation between Islam and Christendom and analysing the difference between the three monotheistic faiths—Judaism, Christianity, and Islam—the author describes the two poles of Muslim belief in terms of truth and mercy: the Unitarian truth, which is the basis of the Muslim's faith, and the mercy inherent in this truth. In the second part of the book he explains the significance of the qur an and tells the dramatic story of muhammad s life and of the early caliphate lastly the author considers the muslim view of man s destiny the social structure of islam the role of art and mysticism and the inner meaning of islamic teaching concerning the hereafter throughout this book the author is concerned not with the religion of islam in isolation but with the very nature of religious faith its spiritual and intellectual foundations and the light it casts upon the mysteries and paradoxes of the human condition and to associations between religious groups and the state it also offers a powerful challenge to claims about the insularity of british islamic institutions by showing how the national orientation of islam called for by british policymakers is in fact already happening the arab revolutions of 2011 were a transformative moment in the modern history of the middle east as people rose up against long standing autocrats throughout the region to call for bread freedom and dignity with the passage of time results have been decidedly mixed with tentative success stories like tunisia contrasting with the emergence of even more repressive dictatorships in places like egypt with the backing of several gulf states focusing primarily on egypt this book considers a relatively understudied dimension of these revolutions the role of prominent religious scholars while pro revolutionary ulama have justified activism against authoritarian regimes counter revolutionary scholars have provided religious backing for repression and in some cases the mass murder of unarmed protestors usaama al azami traces the public engagements and religious pronouncements of several prominent ulama in the region including yusuf al qaradawi ali gomaa and abdallah bin bayyah to explore their role in either championing the arab revolutions or supporting their repression he concludes that while a minority of noted scholars have enthusiastically endorsed the counter revolutions their approach is attributable less to premodern theology and more to their distinctly modern commitment to the authoritarian state
