thomas pynchon s fiction has been considered masculinist misogynist phallogocentric and pornographic its formal experimentation irony and ambiguity have been taken both to complicate such judgments and to be parts of the problem to the present day deep critical divisions persist as to whether pynchon s representations of women are sexist feminist or reflective of a more general misanthropy whether his writing of sex is boorishly pornographic or effectually transgressive whether queer identities are celebrated or mocked and whether his departures from realist convention express masculinist elitism or critique the gendering of genre thomas pynchon sex and gender reframes these debates as the first book length investigation of pynchon s writing to put the topics of sex and gender at its core it moves beyond binary debates about whether to see pynchon as liberatory or conservative instead examining how his preoccupation with sex and gender conditions his fiction s whole worldview the essays it contains which cumulatively address all of pynchon s novels from v 1963 to bleeding edge 2013 investigate such topics as the imbrication of gender and power sexual abuse and the writing of sex the gendering of violence and the shifting representation of the family providing a wealth of new approaches to the centrality of sex and gender in pynchon s work the collection opens up new avenues for pynchon studies as a whole while suburbs provide a rich field of research for sociologists architects urbanists and anthropologists they have not been given much attention in literary and cultural studies the suburbs new literary perspectives sets out to enrich the limited existing body of critical analysis on the subject with a landmark collection of essays offering a far larger perspective than the books or collections published so far on the topic this interdisciplinary and wide ranging approach includes literary and art studies philosophy and cultural comment it examines the suburbs across cultural differences contrasting british south african and north american suburbs the specificity of this book therefore lies in a cross national and cross continental exploration of these uncharted territories the suburbs are redefined as those rebellious margins whose geographical borders are necessarily fuzzy and sketch out a common place where cultural frontiers can be transcended they are to use sarah nuttall s terminology places of entanglement where contraries meet and where new ways of being in the world is reborn seen through the prism of art and literature the suburbs may then be recognized as philosopher bruce bégout argues as a new way of thinking and making urban space this book develops and demonstrates an interdisciplinary method that reads literary works as a way of thinking about the city literary works do not only provide reflections of the city depictions of the city as an aesthetically compelling setting but the literary reflection of the city also offers a critical reflection on the city how can spatial difference be conceived in cities that are changing beyond the form of the classical modern metropolis of the early 20th century how can one think of the relation between individual urban subjects and their urban environment when neither spaces nor discourses of the city provide them with an answer to the question where they might belong how does the human body interact with its urban surroundings and how should technological mediations be thought of this book approaches these questions through analysing literary texts focusing on concepts like heterotopia non place and the posthuman this book will be of interest to interdisciplinary scholars and students of the city particularly in the fields of urban studies literary studies geography and architecture this is about a society of isolates who all communicate with one another from terminal sites this is about being disembodied distanced distinct and that sort of boundary thing it is not about being present it is not about being there it is not about a shared history or a shared meal or a shared story or any kind of mutuality it is about contact between virtual strangers it happens when you feel that you are so alone that you need anybody to talk to anybody at all because you believe that your connections have failed you this kind of connection leaves you cold and dead inside because it lacks history and a language of belonging in this daring postmodern autobiography s paige baty recounts her search for love and community on the internet taking jack kerouac s on the road as a point of departure baty describes both an actual road trip to meet the object of an e mail romance and the cyber search for connection that draws so many people into the matrix of the internet writing in a bold experimental style that freely mixes e mails poems fragments of quotations and puns into expository text she convincingly links e mail trouble with female trouble in the displacement of embodied love and accountable human relationships to opaque screens and alienated identities her book stands as a vivid feminist critique of our culture s love affair with technology and its dehumanizing effect on personal relationships these short essays are sometimes humorous sometimes funny sometimes smile and or laugh inducing although they sometimes sit there like cups of flat lukewarm recycled beer even then however it must be admitted they are short mostly they re pretty funny
