this book provides the first systematic assessment from a human rights law perspective of the landmark contributions of the renowned legal anthropologist sally engle merry what impact does over simplification have on human rights debates the understandable tendency to present them as a single universal and immutable concept ignores their complexity and by extension only serves to weaken them merry and her colleagues transformed human rights thinking by highlighting the process of vernacularization which sees rights discourse as being unavoidably dependent upon translation and interpretation she also warned of the pitfalls of excessive reliance upon statistical and other indicators through the process of quantification here the leading voices in the field assess the significance of these contributions to a degree unknown in practically any other discipline the pedagogical space afforded composition is the institutional engine that makes possible all other theoretical and research efforts in the field of rhetoric and writing but composition has recently come under attack from many within the field as fundamentally misguided some of these critics have been labelled new abolitionists for their insistence that compulsory first year writing should be abandoned not limiting itself to first year writing courses this book extends and modifies calls for abolition by taking a closer look at current theoretical and empirical understandings of what contributors call general writing skills instruction gws i the curriculum which an overwhelming majority of writing instructors is paid to teach that practically every composition textbook is written to support and the instruction for which english departments are given resources to deliver the vulnerability of gws i is hardly a secret among writing professionals and its intellectual fragility has been felt for years and manifested in several ways in persistently low status of composition as a study both within and outside of english departments in professional journal articles and conference presentations that are growing both in theoretical sophistication and irrelevance to the composition classroom and in the rhetoric and writing field s ever increasing attention to nontraditional sites of writing behavior but to date there has been relatively little concerted discussion within the writing field that focuses specifically on the fundamentally awkward relationship of writing theory and writing instruction this volume is the first to explicitly focus on the gap in the theory and practice that has emerged as a result of the field s growing professionalization the essays anthologized offer critiques of gws i in light of the discipline s growing understanding of the contexts for writing and their rhetorical nature writing from a wide range of cognitivist critical theoretical historical linguistic and philosophical perspectives contributors call into serious question basic tenets of contemporary writing instruction and provide a forum for articulating a sort of zeitgeist that seems to permeate many writing conferences but which has until recently not found a voice or a name why have so many radical thinkers advocated for the abolition of prisons and punishment and why have their ideas been so difficult to popularize or garner the political will for change this book outlines several different approaches to penal abolitionism and showcases their calls for the ending of legal coercion domination and repression this exciting and innovative edited collection shows how abolitionist ideas have continued topicality and relevance in the present day and how they can collectively help with devising new ways of thinking about social problems as well as suggesting alternatives to existing penal policies practices and institutions the essays in this book stemming from a national conference of the same name focus on the single subject required of nearly all college students composition despite its pervasiveness and its significance composition has an unstable status within the curriculum writing programs and writing faculty are besieged by academic political and financial concerns that have not been well understood or addressed at many institutions composition functions paradoxically as both the gateway to academic success and as the gatekeeper reducing access to academic work and opportunity for those with limited facility in english although writing programs are expected to provide services that range from instruction in correct grammar to assisting or resisting political correctness expanding programs and shrinking faculty get caught in the crossfire the bottom line becomes the firing line as forces outside the classroom determine funding and seek to define what composition should do in search of that definition the contributors ask and answer a series of specific and salient questions what implications intellectual political and institutional will forces outside the classroom have on the quality and delivery of composition in the twenty first century how will faculty and administrators identify and address these issues what policies and practices ought we propose for the century to come this book features sixteen position papers by distinguished scholars and researchers in composition and rhetoric most of the papers are followed by invited responses by other notable compositionists in all twenty five contributors approach composition from a wide variety of contemporary perspectives rhetorical historical social cultural political intellectual economic structural administrative and developmental they propose solutions applicable to pedagogy research graduate training of composition teachers academic administration and public and social policy in a very real sense then this is the only book to offer a map to the future of composition the greatest problem in historical scholarship theoretically and practically is the relation between historians and their subject matter the past is gone and historians can only study its remnants on what basis do scholars select certain facts from the mass of data left from the past how do they explain the interrelationship of the facts they select what criteria do they use to evaluate their subject the 35 volumes in this set originally published between 1926 and 1990 discuss and answer these essential questions faced by historians the development of historical understanding during the 18th and 19th centuries was one of the most striking features of western culture both historiography and historical thinking advanced as never before the historical movement of the 19th century was perhaps second only to the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century in transforming western thought one consequence was extensive organisation and professionalization of research which the volumes in this set reflect long before today's culture wars the third great awakening rocked america during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries evangelists such as dwight l moody and billy sunday roused citizens to renounce sin as it manifested in popular culture moral ambiguity and the changing role of women sin in the city examines three urban revivals in turn of the century chicago to show how revivalists negotiated that era's perceived racial sexual and class threats while most studies of this movement have focused on its male leaders and their interactions with society thekla ellen joiner raises new questions about gender and race by exploring third awakening revivalism as the ritualized performance of an evangelical social system defined by middle class protestant moral aspirations for urban america rather than approaching these events merely as the achievements of persuasive men she views them as choreographed collective rituals reinforcing a moral order defined by ideals of femininity masculinity and racial purity joiner reveals how revivalist rhetoric and ritual shifted from sentimentalist identification of sin with males to a more hard nosed focus on females castigating loose women whose economic and sexual independence defied revivalist ideals and its civic culture she focuses on dwight l moody s 1893 world s fair revival the 1910 chapman alexander campaign and the 1918 billy sunday revival comparing the locations organization messages and leaders of these three events to depict the shift from masculinized to feminized sin she identifies the central role women played in the third awakening as the revivalists promoted feminine virtue as the corrective to america s urban decline she also shows that even as its definition of sin became more feminized billy sunday s revivalism began to conform to chicago s emerging color line enraged by rapid social change in cities like chicago these preachers spurred protestant evangelicals to formulate a gendered and racialized moral regime for urban america yet as joiner shows even as revivalists demonized new forms of entertainment they used many of the modern cultural practices popularized in theaters and nickelodeons to boost the success of their mass conversions sin in the city shows that the legacy of the third awakening lives on today in the religious right s sociopolitical activism crusade for family values disparagement of feminism and promotion of spirituality in middle class racial and cultural terms providing cultural and gender analysis too often lacking in the study of american religious history it offers a new model for understanding the development of a gendered theology and set of religious practices that influenced protestantism in a period of enormous social change
