the north american great plains and rocky mountains have yielded many artifacts and other clues about the prehistoric people who once lived there but little is understood about the hunting practices that ensured their survival for thousands of years noted archaeologist george frison brings a lifetime of experience as a hunter rancher and guide to bear on excavation data from the region relating to hunting illuminating prehistoric hunting practices in entirely new ways sharing his intimate knowledge of animal habitats and behavior and his familiarity with hunting strategies and techniques frison argues that this kind of firsthand knowledge is crucial for understanding hunting in the past excavation at the stampede camp and the saamis site located in medicine hat alberta resulted in the isolation of five site areas from which an abundance of artifacts were recovered providing data for detailed typological analysis cultural reconstruction and comparative studies together the two sites were occupied during the middle prehistoric late prehistoric and protohistoric periods published in english a comprehensive revision of the classic prehistory of the north american high plains one of a series of more than 20 volumes resulting from the world archaeological congress september 1986 which brought together archaeologists and anthropologists from many parts of the world academics from contingent disciplines and non academics from a wide range of cultural backgrounds this book considers prehistoric and more recent manifestations of human hunting behaviour with a general emphasis on communal hunting it demonstrates that the combination of archaeological ethnographic and ethnohistorical approaches provides a researched basis for consideration of the topic on worldwide regional and local scales it includes theoretical and methodological issues within a context of enquiry original data presentation and discussion it is of interest to archaeologists anthropologists and ethnohistorians once the world s prairies grasslands steppes and tundra teemed with massive herds of game gazelle wild ass bison caribou and antelope humans seeking to hunt these large fast moving herds devised a range of specialised traps that share many characteristics across all continents typically consisting of guiding walls or lines of stones leading to an enclosure or trap game drives were designed for a mass killing construction of the game drive organisation of the hunt and processing of the carcass often required group co operation and in many cases game drives have been linked to seasonal gatherings of otherwise scattered groups who may have used these occasions not only to hunt but also for social ritual and economic activities the gazelle s dream game drives of the old and new worlds is the first comparative study of game drives examining this mode of hunting across three continents and a broad range of periods the book describes the hunting of bison in north america reindeer in scandinavia antelope in tibet and an extensive array of examples from the greater middle east from egypt to armenia the gazelle s dream will be of value to anyone with an interest in the history of hunting and wildlife management
