andean archaeology iii represents a continuation in our effort to highlight the nest of current archaeological scholarship conducted in the central andean culture area each paper contributes in a significant way to understanding prehistoric processes in the central andean culture tradition adding importantly to the rich base provided by andean archaeology i and ii as in those former volumes we do not seek a balanced presentation of the entirety of the andean past but instead showcase what is new what is innovative and what is controversial in thinking about and investigating the great sweep of andean cultural development we wholeheartedly agree with pauketat 2001 xiii that it is more satisfying to compare how cultural phenomena happened than for researchers to hasten to answer why questions that tend more to reify their initial assumptions than to inform us about prehistoric people and their embodied cultural practices we support the revitalized study of sociocultural evolution especially that championed by bruce trigger e.g. 1998 2003 which has benefited by several decades of valuable critique on the other hand explanations of the past not based on comparisons of historical processes carefully argued from well studied archaeological records sacrifice the rigor that was such an important part of the first processual archaeology advocated by lewis binford 1962 1964 1972 sabloff 1998 see also yoffee 2005 inter alia in some recent and current andean archaeology we find explanatory conclusions especially processual evolutionary transformations and climate change based rise or collapse accounts to have been reached too hastily constituting more of a reading of material remains in terms of theoretical expectations than a rigorous interrogation of the archaeological record
